Content Note

The Archives of the League of Women Voters, 1948-1993, contains copies of annual reports to the state and national offices, minutes and agendas of board and annual meetings, financial reports, budgets, policies, by-laws, and membership information such as rosters and polls as well as statements (referred to as "Action Testimony") regarding the position taken by the League on various political issues. Also included are documents concerning the activities of the organization such as the Ombudsman Project, finance campaigns, and editorials to the Wichita Eagle. In addition to the newsletters: The Bulletin and The Voter, from 1948-1985, the collection contains publications such as membership directories, informational brochures, handouts, and booklets. Also part of the collection are brief histories of the League of Women Voters, newspaper clippings, and memorabilia.

Administrative History

By 1920 when the 19th Amendment to the constitution provided women the right to vote, members of the National American Women's Suffrage Association had, in 1919, formed a new organization: a National League of Women Voters that would "increase the effectiveness of women's votes in furthering better government." Jane Brooks, wife of attorney Charles H. Brooks of Wichita, held office from March, 1919 to February, 1920 as the first permanent chairman of the National League of Women Voters. In Wichita, Mrs. Brooks organized the Sedgwick County League of Women Voters, the first local League in the nation, and served as president from 1919 to 1921. The local chapter was referred to as the Sedgwick County League and the Wichita League of Women Voters interchangeably until 1941. There is no exact record of when the name of the organization officially became the League of Women Voters of Wichita.

The first efforts of the League of Women Voters of Wichita included programs such as free milk and fuel to needy families and "registration teas" to encourage women to register to vote and become League members. They began raising money through "bridge parties," rummage sales, and the opening of a thriftshop in 1920. In the 1930's and 40's the League continued their interest in community concerns as well as state and national issues and educated local voters about the war, U.S. trade relations, and especially local governmental issues. They began publication of informational pamphlets, had a Speaker's Bureau and held bi-monthly radio programs by the mid-50's. In the 60's, League members published a non-partisan voter's guide that was distributed in the Wichita Eagle and Beacon, and conducted candidate forums and interviews on local television and radio stations. The League began to sponsor "legislative dinners" for the Sedgwick County delegation in the 1970's, support the Equal Rights Amendment, and in 1975, allow men to become members. Throughout the 80's and 90's the League continued to provide information to voters in order to promote "political responsibility" in the form of videos, flyers, pamphlets, and participatory activities for the community. The many concerns that have been studied by the League range from the Kansas judicial system, state financing, local housing needs and urban renewal issues to national defense, education and environmental issues.
