Biography

Nora Belle Cunningham was the daughter of Lewis Nelson Cunningham and Mary Peery Cunningham. Born in Humboldt, Kansas, July 23, 1887, Nora had two brothers and one sister. After attending various town and country schools in southeastern Kansas, Nora graduated from the eighth grade in Chanute, Kansas. She obtained a teaching certificate and taught grade school for a short time in the nearby communities of Coyville and Rollins.

Nora never married nor moved away from her parents' home in Chanute. Many years of her life were devoted to caring for an invalid mother, and later, a sister who became disabled by arthritis.

In 1920, Nora's first poem was published in Youth's Companion, launching her literary career which continued for the next 55 years. Her poems were published in magazines such as Commonweal, Lyric, The Harp, and Poetry as well as newspapers such as the New York Times and the Kansas City Star. Also, she reviewed books for International Book Review, Voices and several regional newspapers. For a short time (1927-1928) she assisted May Williams Ward in editing The Harp, a national poetry magazine published in Larned, Kansas.

Nora Cunningham died September 28, 1975 in Chanute, Kansas, and was buried in the family plot in Leanna Cemetery.
